Who are we?

The NationWide Contractors' Alliance (NWCA) is the only member services organization specializing in administrative and financial services for the construction industry. The NWCA endorses a variety of programs from outside member service providers designed to reduce risks, lower costs and ultimately improve the profitability of its members. It complements these programs with an in-house finance center, automated referral system, trades reference resource program, and a learning center with educational courses that allow members to earn discounts upon renewal of certain liability insurance policies.

How did we get started?

For over a decade, the building industry has been plagued with the high costs and extensive restrictions that have characterized what has become known as the "insurance crisis". Several years ago, a small group of insurance and building industry professionals joined together to address this issue. They quickly realized that there was no single answer to the problems brought on by increasing construction defect litigation, but rather that mitigation of the problem would require a combination of educational, administrative and financially-related programs.

They formed the NationWide Contractors' Alliance (NWCA) as the organizational entity to combine a variety of products and services provided by independent companies that would be contractually bound to the NWCA as Member Service Providers (MSPs). To complement the efforts of the MSPs, the NWCA has also developed a number of in-house, proprietary programs.
